OBD2 Spy names Straight Talk Automotive authorized international distributor of OBD2Spy software

France – July 28, 2011 – OBD2 Spy names Straight Talk Automotive as an authorized international distributor of its' professional quality OBD2Spy automotive diagnostic software for use with Scan Tools.

OBD2 Spy, an applications development company and leading producer of vehicle diagnostic software appoints Straight Talk Automotive, an online international business supplying professional mechanics and enthusiasts as an authorized international distributor of OBD2Spy automotive diagnostic software. Straight Talk Automotive supplies scan tools, automotive diagnostic software, factory service manuals, and OEM tools to professional mechanics and enthusiasts internationally.

“By partnering with OBD2 Spy Software, we have added a quality product capable of graphing 16 sensors at one time. This will enhance the functions of our new patent pending scan tools” stated JD Durham, Business Development Manger, Straight Talk Automotive. This collaboration will benefit both companies as feedback will help the further development of OBD2 Spy with functions professional mechanics can use to more accurately and quickly diagnose problems including intermittent problems with a larger diversity of vehicles.

OBD2 Spy, vehicle diagnostic software works with most “ELM” type Scan Tools. OBD2 Spy software is available from the company website www.obd2spy.com as a direct download and at select authorized distributors. OBD2 Spy software suggested retail is 29.00 EUR.

Founded in 2006, OBD2 Spy develops vehicle diagnostic software that help customers using the “ELM” type scan tools to properly diagnose their vehicles. More information about OBD2 Spy automotive diagnostic software can be found at www.obd2spy.com
